Patronage Yes-Men

WASHINGTON— Washington observers, including Republican hawks, will watch the distribution of patronage with keen eyes for the next few months. Reason is that the administration promised juicy jobs right and left in the last hours of the battle to win price rollbacks in the recent session of Congress.

One important Democrat serving on the conference committe for the house was offered a place in the federal reserve system. He told the farmers in their opposition to artificial con- was about the only one who declined a plum. It is understood that a certain conferee switched to the White House side in return for the promise of a judgeship, although he had championed the farmers in their opposition to artifical controls. Other managers who caved in at the eleventh hour received assurances that well-paid positions for their friends will be forthcoming as soon as the terms of incumbents expire.

Labor leaders cognizant of this situation are sore. Among themselves they are wondering why F. D. R. did not use the same expedient only a week before to prevent the legislature from overriding his veto of the Smith-Connally anti-strike bill.—Ray Tucker.

FIGHTING JOHN BARLEYCORN

LOS ANGELES— Alcoholics Anonymous, the national organization which has transformed countless thousands of chronic drunks into sober and useful citizens in the eight years of its history, strikes out in another new direction in a suburb of Los Angeles.

Alcoholics Anonymous groups are performing an almost unparalleled service in these times, that of restoring warm neighborliness, profound concern and honest love.

The sufferings of brothers and sisters also fighting against being sucked by alcohol into skidrows, madhouses or suicide, provides a feeling of kinship, a recognition of a common struggle, and a need to help one another overcome a common tragic weakness rooted in fairly common frustrations.

DR. WILLIM A. WIRT

NEW YORK— I feel that I have profited by my little refresher course in the case of Dr. William A. Wirt, the Gary, Ind., schoolmaster, who got the works from a loaded new deal committee of the house of representatives back in 1934. Wirt wrote a manifold letter to a lot of Republicans in which he reported that a number of new dealers, in the course of some general conversation after a dinner party, had said that President Roosevelt was to be the Kerensky of an American revolution who would later give way to a Stalin.—Westbrook Pegler.

Editor meets FBI Kommissar

A week ago when I descended in the elevator of the S. D. Trust & Savings Bank Building, a bespectacled man, with a pipe, entered the car at one of the floors. That pipe looked familiar to me. I gazed closer and figured, "it's Harold Nathan".

As soon as we reached the main floor I spoke to him. In the car he had his hat in his hand, but now he put it on, and sure enough it was the FBI Kommissar himself who had vainly tried to get me twice indicted by a federal grand jury in Los Angeles for sedition. Finally, by remote control he succeeded to see me indicted twice by a D. C. grand jury for having conspired in that city with George Sylvester Viereck and 32 others to demoralize the armed forces. The success was phenomenal because I had not been in Washington since 1919.

I scrutinized Nathan closely to discover his supernatural powers by which he is able to conjure events which never happened in reality and make his subjects believe they saw them happening. But outwardly the magician looked like every other mortal and to my great surprise he talked quite natural and coherently and assured me that my being under $1000 bond, he did not expect to see me arrested again when the D. C. grand jury files its indictment a 3rd time, on the same charges.

Many people have traveled to India to watch fakirs throw ropes to the skies and have little boys climb up the rope and disappear in the clouds. Others, like Ambassador Davis, went to Moscow to witness one of Stalin's tricks by which he convicted a large group of seditionists of horrible crimes to which they all gladly confessed to get shot. But in San Diego we are fortunate. We can meet the master in the art of make-believe, free of charge, by riding the elevator in the Trust & Savings Bank Building.

The federal administration which conjures rabbits of prosperity, four freedoms and never again sending boys abroad to fight on foreign soil before election,— out of the chief magician's hat,— naturally, is keeping these fanciful artists on the public payroll for the delectation of the hoi polloi.

Praised be the Lord who lets all who have eyes see the truth. Amen! and Salaam Aleikum!

One marvels at modern miracles. Wendell Willkie, who beats George Washington not telling a lie, confessed to campaign oratory before election, but after election saw the world shrink and Stalin expand, and wrote a book about it that surpasses even the imagination of Walter Winchell, oracle of the New Deal.

Thinks D. C. Should Vote

By Cong. Will Rogers

A school-boy fact, which one is constantly reminded of here in Congress is that Washington, D. C. is run by Congress. Washington has no mayor. The people of it are not allowed to vote. The city is governed by two Congressional Committees, numbering 36 members of Congress.

The fact that Washington is governed by "outsiders" has caused some unusual situations. Sometimes the residents so dislike one of the Congressmen on the District of Columbia Committee that they get together a little money and go into the man's home district and try to defeat him there. It is one of their few ways of redress.

From time to time there have been proposals to give Washington the vote. This has been opposed by the Southerners—both the Southerners in Washington and the Southerners in Congress. The population of Washintgon is about one-fourth Negro. They fear that if the vote were given to Washington, the Negroes would also get to vote. So the capital city of the United States has no say in its government, and no voice in national affairs.

This is something to speculate upon. Washington, D. C., has been under a democracy for 150 years. Yet because of a peaceful racial minority, Washington is not allowed self-government.

How then, do we expect to solve the problems of Europe—which has racial minority problems with age-old hatreds, and problems of self-government of peoples who have never known democracy? If we cannot even give Washington, D. C., the vote how do we expect to be able to give it to Europe?

FASCIST LABEL TIED ON KING, BADOGLIO IN OWI BROADCASTS

NEW YORK— Italy's King Victor Emmanuel was termed "the moronic little king" and "the Fascist king" in broadcasts beamed to Italy and Europe by the office of war information following Premier Mussolini's resignation.

Presenting what it called "typical unofficial reaction" the OWI quoted an imaginary "American political commentator", called "John Durfee". According to "Durfee" the OWI said, the United States will continue the war whether Mussolini, Marshall Pietro Badoglio or "the Fascist king himself" rules Italy.

The OWI broadcast also assailed Badoglio as a "high-ranking Fascist."

Beckwith vs. de Aryan, Again

FEUDALISM and INTERNATIONAL Banditry

For a while Beckwith left me alone after I stated that my purpose in publishing THE BROOM is to emphasize: "SEEK ye FIRST the Kingdom of God and its righteousness and ALL these things (economics included) will naturally accrue thereto." I used to illustrate it to my students somewhat in this fashion.

The king's daughter is to be given in marriage to the most worthy young man in the kingdom. They all vie, some proving themselves good businessmen, others great warriors, statesmen, etc. Each demonstrating that they could run her estates well and protect her. But one young man of noble descent almost got paralyzed with awe when he saw her, she was so lovely and so pure. He was afraid he was not worthy of her. He was very shy, but his adoration of her was written in his whole being. When the day of her consent arrived she rejected all the other suitors. The young man never dared ask for her hand, but she spoke up to her royal father and told him that she intended to marry for love and not to get a manager for her estates. Thus the young fellow did not only win the princess but all her estates, too, and he turned out to be a splendid manager besides. Such is the Kingdom of God.

Beckwith quotes from my article in THE BROOM which I reprinted from Fred Mitchell's Carlsbad Journal.

"Supervisor Smith of Los Angeles County began his address at the national convention of the National Association of County Officers at Omaha with these words:

"This is what the government at Washington orders me to read.

"County Supervisor Walter Bellon of San Diego has filed a sixty-page typewritten report of the Omaha proceedings with the San Diego County Board which he represented at the convention. He gave a summary of this report to the Republican County Central Committe of his home county."

And then Beckwith comments as follows:

"There is grim humor in the fact that this report of this startling development must be credited to C. Leon de Aryan, the irrepressible individualist of San Diego, one of the few newspaper men in the country who persistently dares fate by publishing things like this that the common garden variety of news men suppress; and yet few men have worked as hard, as de Aryan has been most persistent in following the wrong one, about this eclipse of democratic government!

"De Aryan is alert to uncover news of this charcater; but he is always more interested in exposing some one supposed to be responsible for it than interested in explaining why such things happen and how they can be prevented.

"This is because he does not believe they can be prevented unless and until men are reformed or restrained—hence his zeal in chastising those whose conduct he does not approve.

"Editor de Aryan imagines (when he pauses in his fight on personal wickedness) that he believes in the natural laws of economics. He sometimes runs articles to that effect; but he relapses at once into the depths of moralism and begins again beating the journalistic drum in rallying emotional support for morality. By this beating of the drum of emotionalism, he has done more to undermine self-government in this country than he will ever be able to undo—even though he die in prison a martyr to what he thinks is devotion to the cause of democracy.

"The charge that he is disloyal is silly. It is not disloyalty that makes de Aryan a dangerous man; it is his mistaken belief that the rights of man are staked upon man's morality."

* * * *

Beckwith still goes by "beliefs" in natural law of economics and calls himself a "scientist" while I am an alleged "moralist" by horrid contrast. Well, I don't believe in anything, not even God. I am interested only in finding the truth and living up to it, regardless of what others do. To KNOW the truth is what makes us free, not "beliefs".

Of course, I know the truth in economics and from time to time point it out. But why is this truth rejected? Since the truth to me is self-evident, why does humanity today reject it instead of solving all perplexing economic conditions by simply following it?

They DON'T LOVE the truth, hate it today as in the days of the Savior; are AFRAID of it and prefer the way of violence and force, dictatorship. And stating this fact makes me a "dangerous moralist", even un-Christian, according to Beckwith.

We either stand for self-government or we don't. I agree that Voltaire was right when, to paraphrase him, he said that "everybody has a right to go to the devil" and Voltaire even, though not believing a word of what a man might chose to say, would still give his life to protect the right of free speech.

I don't believe a word of what the spellbinders say who get the people hypnotized, bribed and corrupted, drunk with booze and hysteria, to ensure a 4th term and parcel out the world to the backers of the international new deal; but I ask you now, shall we force the people to accept natural economic truths?

If any forcing is to be done, I leave that to Providence and the Law of consequences itself. People have a right to chose to go to hell, stop them and they imagine you took heaven from them and will fight you to the death. That's why they howl for the blood of those who stand for principle and dare expose the stupidity of "popular" views.

Since the truth of economics is available, actually free of charge, but the people don't want it, then there is only one thing left, they must learn the hard way and that accelerates dictatorship. It must first get a whole lot worse before it can improve.

These Four Freedoms

What we need in these U. S. A. today is:

1. Freedom to know the truth.—As long as our churches have only a hearsay acquaintance with God and our schools are controlled by the state and its cheap politicians, the truth is left out in the dark.

2. Freedom to love the truth.— Regimentation and burocracy are not concerned with love of truth since autocracy hates truth and cannot stand investigation and scrutiny.

3. Freedom to tell the truth.— Free press is a constitutional guarantee, but since Mr. Roosevelt relegated the constitution to the horse and buggy era, the postal department interferes freely with the editorial liberty of the weekly press. And the daily press is directly and indirectly subject to Rothschild control, while radio is muzzled.

4. Freedom to respect the Constitution.— Today it is a crime to be an old fashioned American who still believes that the Founding Fathers meant what they said when they declared this country's independence from England, and George Washington warned against entangling alliances. The government is no longer conducted along the lines of tripple checks, but by the commander-in-chief, whom to criticize entails a charge of "conspiracy to demoralize the armed forces in the city of Washington, D. C.," where the people are not even permitted to vote.

"Fighting Offensive War", Firm Ceases Operations

TOLEDO—The Toledo tank depot, owned by the Electric Auto-Lite Co., will cease operating Aug. 1, the 1200 employes have been told by Royce G. Martin, company president.

Martin said the country now was fighting an offensive rather than a defensive war, and that production at the depot, one of the leading tank arsenals of the nation, had far exceeded expectations or needs.

After this war, in the so-called prophecy and vision by George Washington, an invasion by all the nations of the earth united against the U. S. A. is foretold. That awakens the people of this country to the menace of internatioal gangsterism. They beat back the invasion, clean house and THEN the America envisioned by the Founding Fathers really begins to function as a model for all the world to pattern after. And THEN, too, the people will be awakened enough to put the Henry George principle into operation to give the earth and its bounty to every living being according to ability to use profitably. Until then the emphasis must be on our NEED of men who dare to practice in their personal lives what they preach in public, regardless of consequences to themselves when the tyrants betray the oath of office.

Not till the people are struck in their inmost with the feeling of revulsion against feudalism, with its subsequent array of international banditry, that they will seek the way out. And nothing stirs up more revulsion in their hearts than to see men like myself dragged to jail for standing up for the very things the Founding Fathers represent. Knowing this I hasten the day.

PEARL ONE

MAZDA AND AINYAHITA

Chapter III

Ainyahita prepared two flower beds, one to receive the kisses of the early morn toward the East, in honor of the memory of Mazda, the other to her own recollection, next to the former.

How attentive she was to the flower bed of Mazda, where she planted Kasha, the golden sunflower, and Kasha she planted in her own bed. The seed sprouted in both beds, both flowers she cared for tenderly, but the flower of Mazda received particular attention. So particular she became and so anxious she grew, that with jealousy she guarded the flower of Mazda. She charmed away the flies, the bees, the butterflies and every creature from the flower of Mazda; she washed every leaf, every twiglet, with the tenderest of care, sprinkled the soil repeatedly, while at midday and when the humidity grew high and she saw the plant drooping, she would shade it to impart to it the tenderest love.

Still to her great sorrow the flower of Mazda would not thrive. Her own, which she considered neglected, reached out into the atmosphere with head erect and leaves of the healthiest green, full of blossom, full of the richest colors and oil. Ainyahita grew pale and paler and her sweet laughter turned into tears of sorrow. Still she labored hard, thought much and attempted much more. But the flower of Mazda withered and died.

Her father read to her the words of comfort from the Book of the Kings; her mother comforted her with the tenderest aphorisms from the Book of Our Home, yet Ainyahita was not to be comforted.

(Editor's Note: We are reproducing this Pearl One to exemplify what happened to the movement "dedicated to Mazda" by Dr. Hanish. He worked hard to "grow" the flower which today in Los Angeles is the Mazdaznan "Center" controlled by Emmanuel Bachman. All the western world and Europe is looking to it for leadership, but it has withered and died. Still, there are "neglected" Mazdaznans, here and there, who represent the true teachings of Mazda, because they stood on their own and were not coddled by the late planter of the seeds.

Banker's Racket

Whatever the moral or immoral implications, it is a fact that the Bank of International Settlement with its American President and headquarters in Switzerland, has loaned the largest part of its funds to Germany. Funds controlled by American, French, Italian, Belgian, Swedish, Swiss, German and Dutch bankers, have been advanced to Germany in an amount in excess of the capital of the bank. In spite of the war, the B. I. S. continues to carry out transactions across national frontiers and so far, has regularly paid its shareholders a 6% dividend.

The Nazi government is of course in a position to force the closing of the bank but has instead chosen to live up to its obligations and has to date periodically paid in dollars the interest on its debt, which in turn has continued to remunerate its shareholders. The American president, Mr. McKittrick, travelled freely to Berlin, Rome, London and other capitals, in 1939-41, and since Pearl Harbor has been granted special privileges to visit this country and return by Italian diplomatic visa to Rome and thence by private railroad compartment to Switzerland.

"Whom Is He Fooling?"

WASHINGTON— Here is John L. Lewis' private comment on Mr. Roosevelt's handling of the Smith-Connally anti-strike bill. It is probably as succinct a remark about the affair as has been uttered.

"The president," declared John L. "prevented congress from voting favorably on the measure a year ago when it was most needed. Next, he encouraged the legislature to pass it. Later he persuaded Bill Green and Phil Murray to oppose it. Finally he vetoed it.

And what am I then?
Heaven's unnumbered host though multiplied by myriads and arrayed in all the glory of

Thy greatness:
Is a cypher brought against infinity.
What am I then? Naught?

OPA Defied in Gas Case

Dictatorial Powers Over 'A' Book Hit

NEW YORK—The OPA was confronted by a defiant motorist who insisted no "bureaucrat" is going to tell him how he may use his 1½ gallon weekly gas ration and said he would carry the fight to the U. S. Supreme Court if necessary.

The balky gentleman is Norman C. Norman, New York business man, who in 1934 defied the NRA and in 1935 lost a Supreme Court verdict seeking payment of the gold value of a bond coupon.

Norman revealed he has refused to appear before his rationing board on a nonessential driving charge, will refuse to surrender his "A" book if it is revoked, and has invited the OPA to take him to court.

Summoned to appear following a minor accident, Norman was told to bring his ration book, tire inspection certificate and license.

Norman declared he could find nothing in the law giving the ration board the powers it assumed.

"THERE SHALL BE LIGHT"

The old has fled from out our sight,
The new appears and sets aright
The wrongs once perpetrated.
The hours of darkness swiftly flee,
The higher nature sets us free
Through light well penetrated.

The things undone be thought no more,
Let all the past remain a lore
And touched upon but lightly.
Think only good, speak only good,
While all thy deeds be purely good,
Shun what appears unsightly.

The old has gone for once and all,
Remember then the Savior's Call:
"There shall be Light" 'midst darkness;
New heavens and new earths appear
While courage shall supplant all fear,
Our days be floods of brightness.

De Priest Requests Instructions to Grand Juries

FIRST COURT MOTION of its kind in

On March 18th and 19th, 1943, the counsel for the United States, the Honorable O. John Rogge, as prosecutor, of Case No. 71,203, announced in open court that he proposed and intended to go before the new April grand jury and ask a new indictment of some or all of the defendants herein.

The proceedings here are somewhat similar to that of "U. S. v. Watkins", reported in 28 Fed. Cas. 16,649, page 421. Said the court:

"In the progress of the cause a number of indictments were successively found by the grand jury, and were, in some instances, so blended in argument, that the whole may be considered as one cause and one prosecution. It came before the court first upon demurrer to two indictments."

In those wiser days, under the common law, the district attorneys and other prosecutors were not allowed in the room with the grand jurors, the rule being for said district attorneys to send in to the grand jury the proposed bills, with the names of witnesses inscribed on the back of the bills. Upon the refusal by that Watkins 1829 grand jury to find a certain bill true, because it contained the word "forgery", the district attorney moved the court to INSTRUCT THE GRAND JURY ON the particular point of law involved.

Whereupon the chief judge, William Cranch, made the following ruling:

"When an instruction to a grand jury is asked, either by the accused or the prosecutor, it is a matter of discretion with the court to give the instruction or not; and in exercising that discretion, they will take into consideration all the circumstances under which the instruction is prayed, and the extent of the prayer."

(28 Fed. Cas. 16,649, page 450).

Edwards on "The Grand Jury", page 26, says: "Every charge must, of course, meet peculiar circumstances; and go, somewhat, to localities."

The charge which this defendant is respectfully and earnestly petitioning this court to make is to meet the circumstances of this particular case. Your petitioner defendant makes oath herewith that he is prepared to submit various affidavits from witnesses and others, to show that the two previous indictments herein referred to were brought forth by a special prosecutor through a grand jury which was under his complete domination and direction, and which was not an independent body, as the law requires; that witnesses were brow-beaten, intimidated and coerced; and that in general its investigations were a travesty upon justice.

This defendant is prepared to show that the special prosecutor in these aforesaid cases conducted himself before the grand juries exactly as the prosecutors did in the cases of "U. S. v. Kilpatrick", (16 Fed. 765), and "U. S. v. Wells", (163 Fed. 323), where in each case the prosecutors were excoriated and jurors swore to the prosecutors' misconduct!

These injustices should not be repeated again and again in the grand jury room.

Although the present sitting grand jury heard an opening charge of the highest merit, from a justice of this court, it is unfortunately true that His Honor had had no judicial information of the abuses to which previous grand juries had been indurated, which might have brought from the judge's lips a warning to the present jury to beware of such domination. Nor did His Honor have judicial notice that this grand jury might be called upon to consider transgressions of the laws of sedition and conspiracy.

As in prohibition times it was the custom of federal judges to charge grand juries at length upon the laws of prohibition, such as the Volstead act, your petitioner points out that our nation, being at war, is interested in the unfamiliar laws of so-called "sedition" and conspiracy, upon which grand juries cannot legally be instructed by the federal prosecutors, and must depend upon their only legal source of advice, the federal judge.

Wherefore this defendant, in behalf of himself and in justice to his co-defendants as well, most earnestly and respectfully petitions the Honorable Court to charge and instruct the present and any subsequent special grand jury which may be impanelled in this case, upon the following points and decisions of the law. Except for the quoted decisions of the highest courts of appeal, the language is merely suggestive and may be improved as the Honorable Court sees fit. The charge prayed for follows herewith.

GENTLWOMEN AND GENTLEMEN OF THE GRAND JURY:

The court, at the request of defense counsel, will now address you, charging and instructing you in regard to your duties and explain to you certain points of law, with citations from outstanding decisions of the American courts.

1. YOUR DUTIES AS GRAND JURORS

You grand jurors are to bear constantly in mind that you are a "Bill of Rights" body, authenticated and perpetuated by the Fifth Amendment of our Constitution. The Fifth Amendment goes back 728 years to the Magna Charta, which had the following words:

"No man shall be taken (that is) restrained of liberty by petition or suggestion to the king or to his council, unless it be by indictment or presentment of good and lawful men, where such deeds be done."

You will notice that the principle embodied in the last five words is incorporated in our Sixth Amendment, requiring trial in the State and district where the offense was committed.

You are as much, or perhaps more, a "bill of right" bulwark for the innocent as, or than, you are an accuser for the guilty.

You must keep constantly in mind that you are an ARM OF THE COURT and NOT of the Department of Justice. Like and with the court, you belong to the third, or Judiciary, department of our government.

You are NOT a part, nor an appendage, of the Department of Justice, which is only a part of the second, or Executive, branch of the government.

The first, or chief, branch of our government is the Congress, which directly represents the whole people, and ours being a "government of, for and BY the people," our Congress makes all the federal laws, is the only branch with the power of investigating other branches and it has the power of throwing out of office, for cause, any official of the other two departments, including the President.

The executive department of the government is the servant of the first—that is, is subject to the people through their Congress, and its duty is to endeavor faithfully to execute our laws.

It was the aim of our Constitution to keep these three departments of government separate. "For hundreds of years," says Edwards on "The Grand Jury", page 110, "at common law the district attorney (or other prosecuting officer) had no right to attend the grand jury's sessions. It is even doubtful whether he had the right, unsolicited, to send indictments to the inquisitorial body for consideration. (Quoted in U. S. v. Wells, 163, Fed. 324.)

Gillette Boom Grows

WASHINGTON— There is more than meets the eye behind the backstage grooming of Senator Guy Gillette of Iowa to be President of the United States.

Despite the denials, Jim Farley let part of the cat out of the bag when he called an ultra secret luncheon of anti-Roosevelt Senators in the Capitol the other day to push Gillette's nomination.

But there is a lot more than Jim Farley behind the plan. Real fact is that Gillette's candidacy was first inspired and privately pushed by a group of wealthy Chicago businessmen who sponsored the America First Committee.

Jim Farley wasn't in on the ground floor with Gillette at first. He leaned toward Senator Harry Byrd of Virginia as the ideal Democrat to pick up Republican votes and defeat Roosevelt. However, when he saw the Chicago support and money for Gillette he was glad to go along.

The big money boys in Chicago who are pushing Gillette argue that food will be a tremendous political issue in the 1944 campaign, so a Midwesterner would be a better candidate.

They also point out that Gillette is on the Senate Agricultural Committee, where he has done a good job, and unquestionably showed the Administration some real pointers on synthetic rubber.

NOTE: This may be good strategy on paper, but whoever heard of the Republican Party nominating a Democrat when they could smell victory themselves. That's one reason the boys don't even warm up to Willkie.—Drew Pearson.
